
Message from Daw Aung San Suu Kyi on the occasion of Burma's Women's Day

The active participation and contribution of women from the different regions of our world in the social, economic and political fields will lead to the development of the healthy environment for all humanity. The women of Burma must play an active role and contribute to the welfare and best interests of all people of our nation. I would like to express my hope that women will take leadership roles in the struggle of each and every ethnic group in Burma toward the country's peace and unity.
